((From: In 2011, Welsh director Gareth Evans gave us "The Raid: Redemption," one of the best pure action movies ... not least because of his acting. This film shows once again that Gareth Evans is not just a film maniac, but a talented director who knows in what proportions to mix action meat with the sauce of drama to get a cinematic truth. After the release of the first part of "The Raid," many wondered - what will happen next? What awaits us in the second one? Will it be more exciting. Will it be more suspenseful. Because it is... Because it's true. Because during the six months that passed, I couldn't wait any longer. Because every minute I spend with him makes me want it even more. Because he's become my drug and I've become his. Because I want him so badly. I know I can't hold on much longer. I know I won't be able to hold on much longer. I'm just afraid of losing control. (You know I can't stop thinking about you.) You know I can't stop thinking about you. (I know, I know, I know) Cause I want him so bad. I know I can't hold on much longer. You know I won't be able to hold on much longer. I'm just afraid of losing control, and that's my trouble. I'm afraid that my feelings might fade in an instant; that those I love might turn away from me, that I might be rejected. I am afraid that I will lose interest in life, that I won't care, don't care, don't care. And at the same moment - right there! -

I'm afraid of losing control. I'm afraid that in that same instant I'll become a total nothing, and I'll become a caretaker, too. I'm afraid that I'll lose interest in life, that I won't care, don't care, don't care. I'm afraid that something will happen to my soul, that it will tear itself apart, that it will cease to exist, and I will be alone. I'm afraid that I won't feel good or bad, that I won't care. I'm afraid that I won't care about all that is and all that was. I won't care. I'm afraid that someday, I'll cry over a book, over someone, because I'll just cry. I'm afraid that I won't have a problem, that I won't care. I'm afraid that I'll stop dreaming and I won't care. I'm afraid I'll be so far away that it will be beyond my power to fix me. I'm afraid I'll go from dreaming to reality, and I won't care. I'm afraid I won't be able to find the motivation to keep dreaming anymore. I'm afraid that I'll stop dreaming and I won't know how to live. I'm afraid that when I don't care, I won't know how to live. I'm afraid that I won't care, and I won't know how to live. I'm afraid that I won't know how to live. I'm afraid I won't know how to live.
