CentOS 6.2 is the latest version of CentOS. Why it does not have this Mac partition support functionality? A: The latest CentOS (and RHEL) 6/7 versions do not support Mac partitions. You need to use a VM host for mac partitions. CentOS 6 is a 32-bit OS that isn't as stable as RHEL so if you need the latest CentOS release, it is best to use CentOS 6.5 or 7.0. CentOS 6.0, 6.1, 6.2, 6.3, 6.4 and 6.5 are said to be 'long-term releases' - that is, they are stable and mature, but not as stable as their later counterparts. CentOS 6.6, 6.7 and 6.8 are said to be 'extended-lifetime releases' - they are still maintained, but not as frequently as their newer siblings. CentOS 7.0, 7.1, 7.2, 7.3 and 7.4 are said to be 'extended-lifetime releases' - they are still maintained, but not as frequently as their newer siblings. RHEL 7.1 is the latest version of Red Hat Enterprise Linux and supports Mac partitions. /* * Copyright (C) 2017 The Android Open Source Project * *
