I started my career at Symantec as an Oracle DBA but after a while I was called by the IT company I was supporting (ASP.NET Experts) to work with them. I had a lot of experience with .NET, C# and SQL Server, so they invited me to join their team. There, I started my own consulting business, but I was always looking for new challenges so one day, after meeting an ex-colleague who was part of an European project known as the ADT (Advocates Decisions To Technology), I decided to join this team. ADT is a European project that is dedicated to the development of the open source software project Extensa Copy. Can you tell us about the main features of the application? The extensaCopy application is an open source software project that presents a very simple way of performing cut/copy/delete operations over multiple files. It supports multiple file and directory locations and includes support for text filters as well as various file operations. We developed this project because we

Geany is an integrated development environment for the text editor, integrated with a compiler, debugger, and editor. It is a light IDE intended to fit in with the rest of GNU software and is used to write all forms of free software. On the whole, I am not much of a fan of the 'point and click' interface. It is not that it cannot be done, it is just that I am not a fan of it. I much prefer point and click to be used. That being said, I love how powerful and capable Geany is. If you are like me, you will want to check out this light weight software. Geany is an integrated development environment for the text editor, integrated with a compiler, debugger, and editor. WHAT'S NEW & FEATURES?: SUPPORT FOR EACH AND EVERY VERSION OF WINDOWS THROUGH THE NEXT UPDATE - NOW ENABLED WITH OPERATING SYSTEM WINDOWS 10James O'Neill (bishop) James O'Neill (1744-1818) was a Roman Catholic bishop of the Diocese of Raphoe. Born in Loughrea, County Galway, O'Neill was the son of the Very Rev. John O'Neill, Dean of Raphoe. His parents were members of the O'Neill dynasty, and so also were his brother John O'Neill, who became Catholic Archbishop of Tuam, and his nephew John O'Neill of Rathkeale, who was Cardinal Archbishop of Armagh. The O'Neills were staunch Jacobites and the O'Neill of Rathkeale was executed during the Williamite war. As a result James' brother John was imprisoned in the Tower of London until the war ended and his nephew John Cardinal O'Neill was forced into exile. During the war, the family of the Dean of Raphoe (James' father) was dispossessed of their lands in County Galway. As such, the O'Neill of Raphoe (Charles O'Neill II), an ancestor of the Cardinal) was forced to flee to England for his own safety. However, when Charles O'Neill was allowed to return to Ireland, he did so using a book of title deeds from the Bishop of Raphoe. In that

Cavendish was named the winner by a photo finish over Britain's Ian Boswell on a stage that was dogged by rain and wind gusts. A screen grab from Sky Italia's live feed of the Tour de France on Wednesday shows British cyclist Mark Cavendish (left) running into the Sky team car after catching up with the pack of riders racing toward the finish. Cavendish, who won the stage, ran off the road and immediately climbed into a car and threw his bike into the back, jumping into the passenger seat and waving his arms for the driver to follow him.Phosphatase and tensin homolog, PTEN, and tumor suppressor in human hepatocellular carcinoma, inhibits proliferation and metastasis through PI3K/Akt pathway. In this study, we investigated the tumor-suppressive role of PTEN, a negative regulator of phosphatidylinositol 3-kinase/Akt pathway, in human hepatocellular carcinoma (HCC) and its correlation with clinicopathological features and prognosis. Expression of PTEN was examined in HCC cell lines and tumor tissues. HCC cells were transiently transfected with either pCDNA3.1-PTEN or pCDNA3.1 as control vector, and cell proliferation and metastatic capability were examined by MTT assay and modified Boyden chamber assay, respectively. The expression of phospho-Akt (pAkt), Akt, Bcl-2, and Bax was examined by western blot analysis. Expression of PTEN in HCC cell lines was significantly lower than that in human hepatocyte cell line, LO2. Overexpression of PTEN in HCC cells resulted in decreased cell proliferation and invasive and migratory capability. Expression of pAkt was downregulated and Bcl-2 was upregulated. These changes were reversed by PTEN overexpression. HCC patients with PTEN-negative tumor exhibited a significantly higher risk of cancer-related death than that with PTEN-positive tumor. Overexp
