We consider a discrete, inhomogeneous, quantum waveguide array arranged on the Lieb lattice. We assume that the quantum lattice gases have been loaded into the array. We allow for a general, three-mode filling factor. Our focus is the Lieb lattice arrangement, which is motivated by the spin liquid behavior found in the triangular lattice Kitaev model. We show that the ground state depends crucially on the filling factor, and in the sub-lattice B/A regime the model supports Mott insulating states in which the B/A sublattices are completely depleted from particles. We develop a detailed characterization of the resulting topological defects, which act as effective magnetic flux quanta in the ground state. PATRONS This is a message to all of our users.
